Join us Wednesday, March 24th, 2010 at the Ramada Inn, South Charleston as expert faculty from NCQA guide participants in an interactive workshop. The faculty will examine how practices can demonstrate that they meet NCQA's PPC-PCMH requirements and discuss sample submissions for PPC-PCMH Recognition. Participants will learn how to identify documentation that does (and does not) meet the requirements and we'll practice scoring each element. The group will identify strategies for enhancing and improving valid content and clarity of the application towards a Recognized Patient-Centered Medical Home and identify the aspects of the survey and evaluation process that may challenge or facilitate an efficient application and survey submission in a variety of practice environments.

This program, presented by Mina Harkins, MBA, MT (ASCP), Vice-President, Physician Recognition Program-NCQA, and William Tulloch, Director, Privacy Certification for Business Associates-NCQA, is designed for any health care professional or consultant interested in getting the inside perspective directly from expert faculty from NCQA in evaluating a primary care practice and their ability to become Recognized as a Patient-Centered Medical Home by NCQA.

The program is free for two (2) members from each WVPCA member organization. Because of the limited grant funding available for the program, if you wish to have additional team members attend, the cost will be $285 per additional person. The non-member rate for this event is $360 per person.

Application has been made for continuing nursing education and physician medical education.
